'Commie' Mail Checked In U.S.

Propaganda Doubles 1955 Figures

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communists are stepping up their propaganda in the United States.

A recent U.S. government check spotted about six million propaganda packages entering this country from Communist-bloc nations in 1959.

The packages contained 10 million items of printed matter, an 18 per cent increase above the previous year and nearly double the 1955 rate.

These figures do not include Red material shipped in from free countries, first-class mail which federal inspectors are barred from checking, or the sizable but unknown amount of propaganda coming off Communist presses within this country.

The Soviet Embassy press department churns out releases for mailing to an estimated 5,000 persons deemed to be opinion-molders.

The embassy also handles the monthly publication of the magazine "U.S.S.R." whose 50,000 copies are distributed across the United States in exchange for the distribution of a similar number of the U.S. government's "America Illustrated" magazine in the Soviet Union.

The Worker, a Communist weekly newspaper published in New York, has a circulation reported at about 15,000. Some 4,000 copies are air freighted each week to the U.S.S.R., where they can be displayed as samples of U.S. press opinion.

A companion weekly, People's World is printed in San Francisco. Its circulation is said to be around 7,000. The Communist party hopes to boost readership of both papers through a circulation drive.

The study of imported propaganda was directed by Irving Fishman, deputy customs inspector in New York. The mail was checked at joint customs-post office control units in New York, San Francisco and New Orleans.

50-Star Old Glory Unfurled Officially

By The Associated Press

A new Old Glory, with 50 stars, flies for the first time on this July 4 across an America made far wider by its newest state. And Hawaii proudly celebrates its admission to the Union.

Hawaii's star takes its place in the field of blue on the 184th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence signed by delegates from the 13 original states. The new flag has five rows of six stars and four rows of five stars.

First to fly the new flag, beginning at 12:01 a.m. Monday are the national Capitol and Ft. McHenry National Monument at Baltimore, Md., where Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner." These are two of the seven places in the United States where the national flag is permitted to fly during hours of darkness.

Special ceremonies later in the day are scheduled in Hawaii and Philadelphia.

For the nation, this Fourth of July is a holiday—with the traditional picnics, swimming, rodeos, political speeches, family gatherings and the annual trek on the highways.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower are spending the holiday weekend at their farm home near Gettysburg, Pa. They went there Friday afternoon.

It's tradition for a new state to get its star in the flag on the Fourth of July following its admission. Alaska got her last year as the 49th state, the first new state since 1912 when Arizona and New Mexico were admitted.

The honor of raising the first 50-star flag over the national Capitol was assigned to two Capitol policemen — one over the Senate chamber, the other over the House wing.

During the day, thousands of other 50-star flags will zip up and down on temporary flagpoles at the Capitol. They will be distributed later by various congressmen as special mementos to their constituents.

It was in 1814 at Ft. McHenry that Key wrote the national anthem by the dawn's early light.

In a speech prepared for the 12:01 a.m. flag-raising there, Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton drew a contrast between the significance of the new flag and, as he phrased it, the "foul and bloody chronicle of the Communist world."

Seaton said admission of Hawaii, with its heavily Asiatic population, demonstrates "the unparalleled recognition of the rights of man wherever the American flag flies."

Residents near three mountains in Maine — the nation's easternmost state — vie for the claim to being first to raise the new flag at sunrise. Maine's Gov. John H. Turner to OLD GLORY, Page 8

Newport Jazz Show Turns Into Riot

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—National Guard troops Sunday patrolled the streets of Newport in the wake of riots in which thousands of jazz buffs fought on one side and the U.S. Marines, police and fire fighters on the other.

The disturbance broke out when some 12,000 youths, unable to gain admittance to the already packed Newport Jazz Festival, hurled beer cans and bottles at police. The riot finally was quenched early Sunday after police threw tear gas bombs at the milling throngs and fire fighters washed them down with big fire hoses.

At the request of city officials, the Navy furnished 50 Marines from the Newport Naval Base — where President Eisenhower is scheduled to begin a vacation next Thursday.

Neighboring communities furnished manpower from their police departments.

The state police sent a detachment of troopers.

At least 30 persons were treated for injuries, the majority suffering cuts and bruises from beer bottles and cans and other missiles.

More than 200 were arrested and transported to numerous jails in a continuous shuttle of patrol wagons.

Fully 170 were held overnight. All but 15 were released Sunday. The others were held for district court on charges ranging from violent assault to reveling.

At midday Sunday, the city Council voted 4-3 to revoke the 1960 license of the Newport Jazz Festival, except for this afternoon's performance. The action cancels the performances scheduled for Sunday and Monday.

The City Council also voted to ban the sale of liquor in Newport Sunday and Monday.

Louis Lorillard, president of the festival, said "this means the end of the Newport Jazz Festival."

He said one of the difficulties of the revocation of the license is how to return $46,000 in advance sale of tickets to 12,000 persons.

Gov. Christopher Del Sesto attended the extraordinary Sunday City Council session.

Earlier, the governor ordered National Guard troops into the area.

More than 100 guardsmen arrived shortly after 2 a.m., and began a patrol of the streets, armed with nightsticks.

Public Safety Commissioner Walter E. Stone sealed off the two bridges leading into Newport and put guards on the ferryboats to keep away everyone from Newport except its residents and those with official business.

He said the ban of outsiders would continue until the restoration of quiet is assured.

George Wein, producer of the festival, protested there was no disturbance inside the park where 15,000 enthusiasts sat listening to the jazz of Dakota Staton, the Ray Charles group, the Horace Silver quartet and others.

2 Men Hurt As Car Hits Pole

Legs Broken In Albany Road Mishap

Two area men were seriously injured early this morning when their car went out of control on Rt. 62, Albion Road, about a half-mile north of Salem, and smashed into a power pole.

Lisbon Post State Highway Patrolmen reported the injured as Kenneth E. Manis, 20, of 318 Woodland Ave., Salem, driver of the car who suffered compound fractures of both legs, and Robert Carle, 23, of Box 153, Lisbon, who received fractures of both legs and possible back injuries.

Carle was taken to Salem City Hospital and later transferred to Youngstown South Side Hospital, where he is reported in fair condition. Manis is in fair condition at Salem City Hospital.

Patrolmen said Manis was driving north at 2:30 a.m. when he failed to make a curve in the road, sending the car off the roadway into two trees and a utility pole.

The Lisbon Post also reported a hit-run traffic collision. It involved a car driven by Paul T. Jones, 35, of Akron, who was driving north on Alternate Rt. 14 and was struck by a southbound car. The other car did not stop. The accident occurred at 12:25 p.m. Saturday, about one-half mile north-west of Salem.

Canfield Post State Highway Patrolmen report an octogenarian escaped injury when his car skidded on wet pavement on Alternate Rt. 14, ran into a ditch and rolled over. The car was driven by Hayden Henthorne, 81, of Wadsworth. The accident happened just north of Rt. 534 at 1:55 p.m.

Oats, Corn Aided By Weather; Hay Harvest Delayed

Oats and corn benefited by the abundance of rain and cool nights recorded in May and June, says Edwin Copeland, district U.S. Cooperative Weather Observer.

He said the conditions should be producing a bumper oats crop and noted that the corn is well above knee high by the 4th of July.

However, the weather conditions have had an adverse effect on hay. He said the harvest has been delayed two weeks already and that the hay is of poor quality.

The average temperature for June was 65 degrees with a high of 86 on the 28th and a low of 38 degrees on the 10th. The average temperature for the month (recorded over 67 years) is 66.5 degrees. Last year's average was 65.5.

The 4.49 inches of rainfall registered last month is almost half an inch more than the 67 year average, but is still .88 inches less than the 5.37 inches measures in June, 1959.

Traffic Figures Threaten New High

By The Associated Press

Traffic deaths on the nation's roads mounted at a record-breaking clip Sunday as the July Fourth Holiday passed the halfway mark. The National Safety Council calculated the pace alarming and said: "This year's figures are threatening to set an all-time high for a three-day Fourth of July period."

The three-day Independence Day record was set in 1955 when 407 persons died in the 78-hour period. The rate was running far ahead of the pace set last Memorial Day, when 367 persons died in a similar three-day period.

Deaths also exceeded the pace of the last 78-hour July 4 holiday in 1958 when the toll was 370. Before the weekend period began, at 6 p.m. local time Friday, the council issued a gloomy estimate: 370 persons could die in traffic accidents.

For comparative purposes, The Associated Press ran a test survey two weeks ago of accidental deaths over a non-holiday weekend of 78 hours duration. Then 348 persons died in traffic accidents, 25 in boating accidents, 81 from drowning and 68 in miscellaneous accidents. This was overall toll of 522.

Multiple accident fatalities swelled the grim count. A father and six children perished in a car-trailer collision in Wisconsin. In San Francisco, a truck-auto collision took the lives of a father his four children. Triple fatality accidents were numerous.

While deaths from boating, drowning and miscellaneous causes swelled as families flocked to beaches, parks and picnic areas the pace in those categories ran far below that of the road fatalities.

And no deaths were reported in the once dreaded fireworks category. No fireworks deaths were reported in 1959 or 1958 either.

Driver Fined At Lisbon Following Accident

LISBON — Jerry Lee Rollyson, 18, of Akron, pleaded "no contest" Sunday evening before Mayor Dean Stockman and was fined $50 and costs for driving left of center line after he was involved in an accident June 25.

Rollyson was driving north of Jackson Ave. and struck a southbound car driven by Victor Dorrell of East Liverpool.

Both Dorrell and his wife, Melvina, were taken to the East Liverpool Hospital.

Rollyson and his two passengers, including the owner of the car, Elmer R. Posey, were taken to Salem City Hospital, for 21 days.

Medical Care, Wage Bills Put Off 'Til August

Action on Sugar Hits Castro; Legislators Off to Conventions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress adjourned for the July political conventions Sunday after an all-night wrangle over legislation demanded by President Eisenhower to cut Cuban sugar imports.

The sugar bill, aimed at curbing the flow of U.S. dollars to the anti-American Fidel Castro regime in Havana, was finally passed after a series of post-midnight Senate votes and a Senate-House conference that ran through the early hours.

The Senate adjourned at 8:33 a.m., after a 22½-hour session, until Aug. 8. The House quit at 8:51 a.m. until Aug. 15. It is taking an extra week because its debate-limiting rules normally enable it to move faster when in session.

Left behind for consideration next month was a series of major bills which Democrats hope to make potent issues in the fall campaign. Several legislators already have said they expect the August session to be a political circus.

The leftover measures include medical care for the aged and minimum wage law changes, both of which are expected to produce long Senate debate, and two matters now locked in the House Rules Committee, federal aid to education and housing legislation.

Foreign Aid Issue

Also put off until next month was the final size of the foreign aid program in the bookkeeping year which started Saturday. Eisenhower has been pressing the Senate to restore a house cut of almost 600 million dollars in the amount he asked. The House voted to provide $3,584,500,000.

On these five big bills there are major differences between the GOP administration and the Democratic leadership of Congress. Most of them also provoke arguments.

Ohio Dems to Hear About Farm Policy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Congressman Robert W. Levering will have a great deal to say about Ezra Benson's farm policy" during the Ohio Democratic Caravan scheduled to begin July 19 and continue until November elections, William L. Coleman said Sunday.

Coleman, State Democratic chairman, said the Caravan will whistle stop across Ohio with the hope that it can appear in each county.

The meetings that will be held in each district, Coleman said, will be able to obtain a real understanding of the problems and what people want done about them.

The caravan will be led by James Ferguson, Democratic Candidate for State Auditor, and the principal speaker in the early stages of the tour will be Levering, Coleman said.

Coleman said the caravan will also include the nine Democratic endorsed judicial candidates for the Ohio Supreme Court and Appellate Courts. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Lt. Gov. John W. Donahy, along with other Ohio elected and appointed officials, will join the caravan at various times during the swing through the state, Coleman said.

The opening gun, Coleman said, will be fired in the Seventh and Fourth Congressional Districts.

The Doctor Says

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M.D.

Errors in Self-Diagnosis Occur

I think I can best impress you with the difficulties of dealing with an acute bellyache by telling you an acute bellyache by telling you on my capacities as author of a widely used textbook on Differential Diagnosis.

Dr. H. T. Hyman

Some years ago, Mrs. Hyman and I managed to steal a few days holiday and visit our favorite Vermont lake. We arrived in late afternoon and I hastily went in for a long-awaited dip.

The water was icy cold and, as I made my way cautiously in, my right foot slipped on a smooth rock and I felt a sharp stitch in my right side.

After my dip, I dressed to go down the road for dinner. I limped both ways because of what I thought to be a "pulled muscle."

When we returned to our cabin, my right side was even more uncomfortable and Mrs. Hyman timidly suggested, in apologetic tones, that maybe I was having an attack of acute appendicitis.

I pook - pooked the suggestion husband fashion—until she took my temperature and found it to be almost 101 degrees.

Before I got to where I could receive medical attention, the pesky little organ was already gangrenous.

Now, to the malicious delight of internes and staff surgeons, experiences like this are daily occurrences in most large hospitals.

FROM THE superior positions those who see the acute belly many hours after the trouble has started are highly critical of the patient who delayed seeking medical aid and of the general practitioner who failed to recognize the emergency at its beginnings.

I suppose it's wrong of me to let you in on professional secrets but I must tell you that I have seen some of these critics through their later attacks of acute bellyache and they've usually shown themselves no brighter than I was with my troubles.

I particularly remember one surgeon who interpreted the pain of his perforated ulcer as "psychosomatic" because it started just after a domestic squabble.

I'M SURE you realize that I wouldn't humiliate myself in the public prints if I didn't think my "secret confession" could be put to very good use.

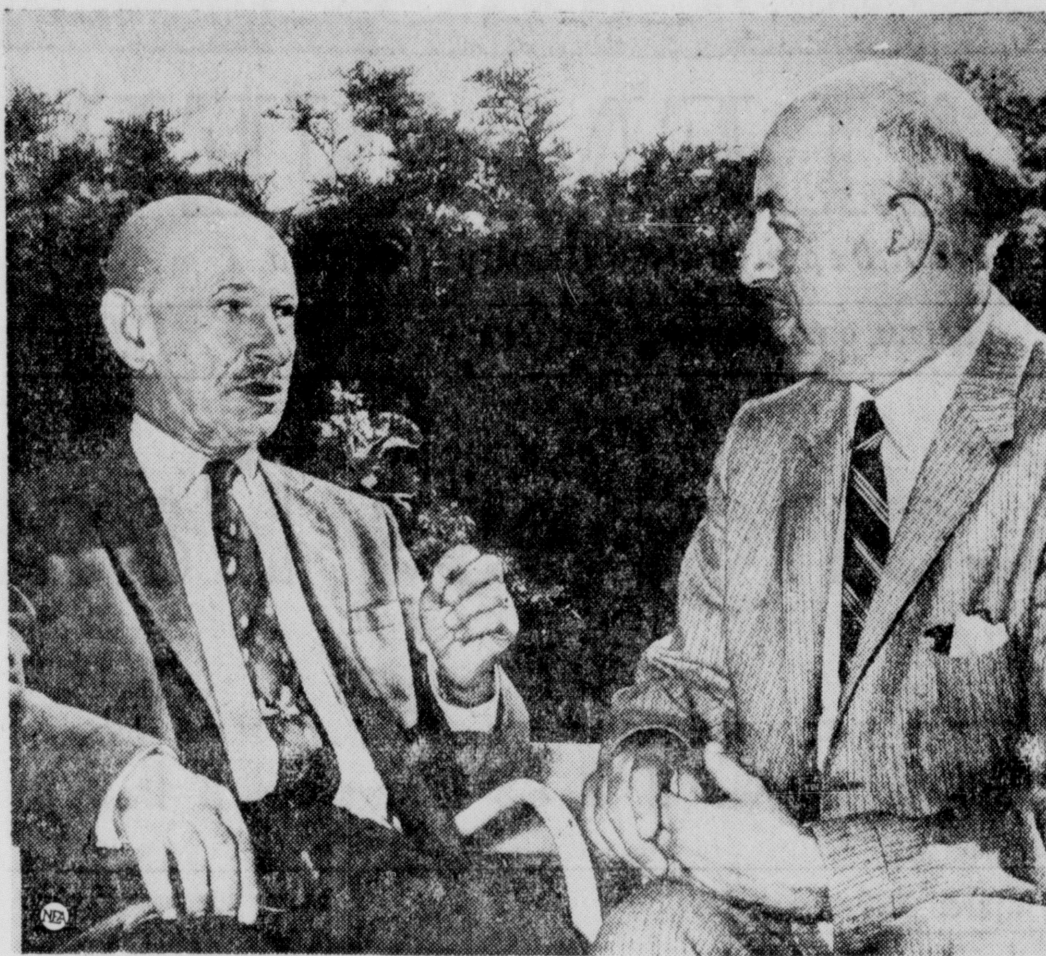

What I'm trying to emphasize are the risks and folly of self-diagnosis in the case of an acute bellyache.

By relying on your own judgment and the efficacy of home treatment with an ice bag or a heating pad, you may save yourself a professional visit and fee.

But you may also prove another horrible example of the adage that the "patient who treats himself has a fool for a doctor."

Dead Man Tells His Tale

He Couldn't Believe It When Told He Died

DR. HARRY EINHORN (right) will be "more cautious" before he pronounces his father, Max (left), dead again.

By OLIVER W. BROWN JR.
DAYTON, Ohio — (NEA) — Max Einhorn, 76, was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth Hospital here on Oct. 28, 1959, by his son, Dr. Harry Einhorn and Dr. S. Paul Rose.

But ask him how he feels today and he'll say, "Fine."

Max Einhorn is one of those men who has been to the "other side" and back — although he doesn't remember a minute of the time he was "dead."

His case is now described as "one in a million" by his son, but at the time he was brought into the hospital, nothing about the circumstances seemed unusual.

Max had suffered a heart attack while playing pinocle. Doctors at the hospital found that he had stopped breathing and his heart had stopped.

An elderly man had died. Everything appeared routine.

HIS FAMILY WAS notified, a funeral home called. Dr. Rose left the hospital and Dr. Einhorn was about to go.

It was nearly half an hour since Max Einhorn had been pronounced dead when a nurse's aide entered the room. She saw his eyes flutter, his arm move. Dr. Einhorn rushed upstairs and resumed treatment. Dr. Rose joined him.

The mortician arrived. "He was flabbergasted when we sent him back," Dr. Einhorn's wife says.

Dr. Einhorn says that he and Dr. Rose are uncertain whether their first attempts to revive Max five minutes after he was believed dead saved his life. Dr. Rose says he struck Max sharply on the chest to stimulate heart action.

According to Dr. Einhorn, a person does not die until he has suffered irreversible brain damage from lack of oxygen. Even if the heart and lungs stop functioning, a person may live if the brain can get them going again.

"BUT MORE REMARKABLE than his survival is the recovery that he has made since then," Dr. Einhorn says. "Brain damage or major paralysis would be expected in such cases."

But Max, who was 77 on March 15, now is mentally alert and almost physically fit, although it took him six months to regain his faculties.

"He gets dizzy when he walks and there is a weakness in his right arm. But that is likely to happen to anyone his age," Dr. Einhorn says.

Max's reaction to all this? "I wouldn't like to go through that again. Not that I felt anything. I didn't know anything about it. I didn't want to believe it but everybody had the same story," he says, adding that "a pretty good job was done."

Although he was coherent and could talk soon after he was revived, Max remembers nothing from the time he "died" until he woke up one morning in a convalescent home in Medway, Ohio.

But the events leading up to his "death" are clear. "I know they took me away. I couldn't play any more pinocle."

Congressmen to Find Less Time For Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio members of the House are going to have a tougher time campaigning for re-election this year.

With Congress returning in August, House members will have to be in Washington—a good part of the time, at least—while their opponents are on the campaign trail back home.

This is not a serious matter for someone like Rep. Michael J. Kirwan (D-Ohio). His position in Youngstown looks as solid as if he were a Democrat from Mississippi.

But to some others the plan to come back was painful news.

For instance, the first-term Democrats who barely made it in the sweep by their party in 1958—Reps. Robert W. Levering, Robert E. Cook and Walter H. Moeller—want all the time they can get for campaigning.

And some Republicans from Ohio, who have been here a good while, are concerned about their chances of re-election. They'd like to have full time to campaign.

Ohio's Senators, on the other hand, have no problem. Sen. Frank J. Lausche won't be up for re-election for two more years. His fellow Democrat, Sen. Stephen M. Young, has four years remaining of his term.

Lausche, though, thinks Congress could have completed its work before the presidential nominating conventions.

"My hope," he told the Senate, "was rooted in the belief that if we assembled after the conventions, whatever we did would be subject to attack on the basis of political motivation."

"Much of that attack probably would be justified."

Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), himself an aspirant for the White House, disagreed.

Johnson did not specifically address himself to Lausche or other senators who expressed views similar to Lausche's. Johnson's answer was:

"I think it is really casting a reflection upon the Senate to say that the Senate is incapable of acting after a political convention."

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: My youngest son was married Easter Sunday. Clinton left home at the age of 17 to go to a bigger city to work. He is only 21 and was supposed to send me money so I could visit him over the Easter holidays. Well, he got married instead.

My new daughter-in-law, I understand, is almost old enough to be his mother. She is 34, owns the restaurant where he went to work and has two children by a former marriage.

When Clinton phoned to tell me the news I dropped the receiver out of my hand and almost knocked out a front tooth. I've been on nerve pills ever since.

Clinton has written me three times to tell me how happy he is and what a wonderful woman he married. I told him in two different letters that I don't want him to bring that wench in the same town with me, and not to phone or write again so long as he is still married to her.

How can I let him know that he has broken his dear mother's heart?—TORN TO SHREDS.

Dear Shreds: If your letter to me is accurate, I think he must have the message.

A Woman's Way

Dear Ann: I'm a widower with three daughters. I went with a very nice woman who worked in the same office. I'll call her Janet. After several months, Janet broke the engagement and promptly married a man who had a better position and family money besides. Although I was hurt, I never held it against her.

Janet is now the head of a large office. My oldest daughter needed a character reference for a job so I phoned Janet and asked if she would supply it. She was most cordial on the phone and said she'd be happy to.

Yesterday my daughter came home in tears. Janet treated her like a stranger, said she couldn't supply the reference because she didn't know her THAT well.

Why would a woman be so mean? You know the female mentality; I don't, Ann Landers. Please clear up this mystery for me.—H.P.F.

Dear H.P.F.: The woman's rudeness was a slap at you. Janet may well be unhappy in her marriage and she may blame you for permitting the other man to shove you out of the picture.

People often select as a target for their anger someone not directly responsible. This was her way of getting even.

Vacation Cottage Can Mean No Vacation for the Wife

The vacation cottage sounds like a long-awaited dream to some women, when at long last the man of the house consents to rent or buy one. But is it really the answer to her summer vacation or will she have to work harder than she would at home?

Mom would do well to impress on the man of the house that there are a couple of questions to be asked before they sign on the dotted line. Here are some worth considering:

1. If the advertisement says "water", you'll want to know whether it is a lake or a quarry that is a bottomless pit, a threat to toddlers and a condition that will keep you on edge. Write to the local department of water supply if you can't get the information any other way.

2. "Mountains" is another ambiguous term. These could be hills, crags or steep cliffs that will necessitate penning up the children or accompanying them every time they are outdoors. Are there dangerous snakes?

3. How can the house be warmed if it turns cold? A rainy summer can result in a damp house with a miserable existence for all, unless there is a way to dry out the house and keep it at a comfortable temperature.

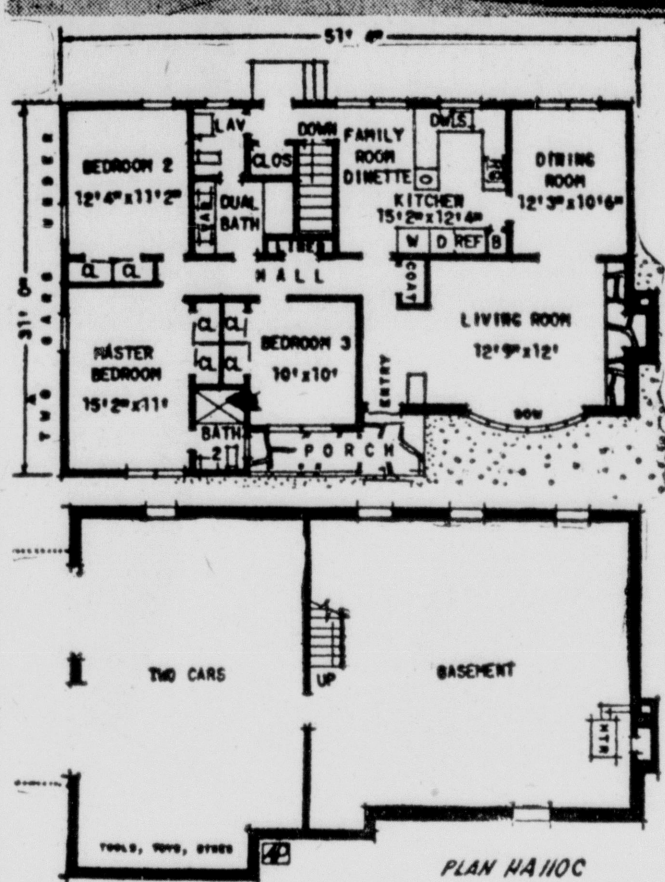

4. Is there running water or will you have to tote it from a well?

5. Is there electricity? If so, is the wiring adequate for any appliances you might take with you? Such items as toaster, iron, baby bottle warmer and sterilizer can small wiring set-up.

6. What is in the house? You'll want an accurate inventory. There is nothing worse than arriving at a summer spot after a long trip and discovering that there are no utensils, coffee pot or what have you.

7. It's a good idea to request that the house be ventilated and inspected before you move in. You should have a guarantee, too, that it is thoroughly clean. Take along disinfectant just in case.

8. How far is it to stores? Church? Are there playmates for your children? Is there any entertainment for small fry,

SPACE SAVER — Bountiful extras on a medium sized lot: That's what makes this three-bedroom ranch home so attractive. A two-car garage on the basement level saves on the lot size needed. Other features are a family room—dining and dual bath with entry from rear door and bedroom hall. Living area is 1,385 square feet. other than what you can provide?

9. How will you get service in the event a major appliance breaks down? Is there a doctor close to the vacation spot?

10. Will the cottage provide linens and blankets? Don't take these items for granted. And if you must cart too much paraphernalia, perhaps it will be too great an inconvenience.

All the Prospects Were Clouded

On the 184th anniversary of their own country's breakaway from imperialism, many Americans are predicting that the new Republic of Congo in Africa will perish for lack of preparation.

Its prospects are clouded. Its people clearly are not ready for the responsibility of governing themselves. They would have been better off to stay under Belgium's protection, just as the people of the French Congo—also called Republic of Congo—would have been well advised to stay in the imperialist nest until their wings were stronger.

But when did a new country break away from its parent with less chance to succeed than the American colonies had when they broke away from "the present king of Great Britain" in 1776.

ITS LEADERS had no experience in day-to-day government. They were revolutionaries, not administrators.

Its people had no conception of the responsibility of self-government. They never had known anything but paternalism tinged with tyranny.

They had no organization for the conduct of their public affairs. The Continental Congress was so inept it couldn't even provide funds for the undisciplined and sometimes irresponsible men who bore arms against Britain.

There was no system for putting a sound currency basis under the experiment in popular rule.

There was no assurance that if the colonies did the impossible and beat Britain they would not end up later in self-defeat, due to their total lack of preparation for carrying on commerce at home and abroad.

No wonder skeptical Tories stayed on the side of England, from where they stood, the only foreseeable consequence of freedom for the willy irresponsible agitators who had sought it would be catastrophic collapse.

AMERICANS had recognized no common allegiance. They were not citizens of a nation but of autonomous colonies, which as late as 1787 were still mistrustful of one another. They were able to agree on a Constitution then only after the most painful travail and to this day cannot agree on what it means.

The United States came into being not as a perfected nation, not even as a harmonious federation of autonomous states. It came into being as a shaky experiment in government and succeeded in spite of its shortcomings—perhaps because it worked so hard to overcome them.

By hindsight only can the Declaration of Independence in 1776 be called a bright turning point in man's long struggle to reach the light.

America survived and succeeded in spite of itself; that has been the experience of all new nations.

The Republic of Congo—the new one that has broken away from Belgium and the somewhat older one that broke away from France in 1958—can claim nothing at the outset but the right to try.

Boo-Boo Of the Century

We are bug-eyed over the claim that Sen. Lyndon Johnson of the Senate and Rep. Sam (Mister Sam) Rayburn of the House have clinched immortality by planning to bring Congress back to Washington after the political conventions. How's that again?

This looks to us like an all-time high for snatching credit out of the jaws of confusion. The plain fact is that Lyndon Johnson and Sam Rayburn fouled up their jobs so badly they couldn't get the work done.

They share their fault with their party's long-winded stalwarts from the Deep South, who staged one of their filibusters last spring, using up time and patience to make it clear that they are still fighting the Civil War. And that could be the thing that would make this unprecedented recess for party conventions look like the boo-boo of the century.

The "rebels" will be at the Democratic convention, raring to assert themselves. Their party's leading candidate, Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, already has put a burr under their tails by saying he doesn't want their support or need it. Sen. Hubert Humphrey also has gone out of his way to show his contempt for their brand of big-D Democracy.

The Southerners run Congress. They are the ranking members of the powerful committees. The one-party system in the South that makes them shoo-ins for election gives the Democratic party its edge in numerical strength and its domination of the House and Senate. Anyone who makes them sore is headed for trouble.

If the Democratic convention of 1960 infuriates them by reminding them again that their party is hog-ridden by Walter Reuther and others they wouldn't sit down to eat turnip greens with that rump session of Congress next August could be the Boo-Boo of the century.

The claim that Lyndon and Mister Sam clinched immortality by thinking of it, because they will pick up all the marbles come mid-August, is pure cobwebs. If they haven't already lost all their marbles, they must be scared green by the prospect of coming back to Washington in mid-August with the Democratic party in two baskets, the way it customarily is after its convention delegates have refought the Civil War.

Putting Salt In Castro's Sugar

When Fidel Castro threatened to seize more United States business property in Cuba if there were any "economic aggression" from Washington, there was a string suspicion he was simply explaining in advance what he had already decided to do.

His seizure of the Texaco refinery for refusing to process Russian crude oil has confirmed the suspicion, as had his continued diatribes against the United States without waiting to see whether any "economic aggression" developed.

Since the bearded one's actions have reached this point of predictability, it is not surprising that Washington's reaction are predictable, too.

There was a time in the recent past when voices on Capitol Hill still were being raised in opposition to legislation to allow the administration to reduce Cuban sugar quotas, because this would constitute the very economic aggression Castro was talking about.

But the voices have waned in the face of the futility of persuading Castro to call off his propaganda war. The sentimental attachment to the Cuban people which has characterized American policy for more than half a century has given way to a hard-nosed demand that we no longer let this brain-washed pop-off run over us.

Official Washington is convinced that is what he plans to do as long as he can get by with it. White House and State Department officials are reported to have told congressional leaders the Cuban crisis is slated to get worse—with no apparent qualification that further velvet-glove handling of the situation might make any difference.

This being the case, Congress had decided the United States should make a show of strength. Strength is, after all, the language the Communists understand best. Although they coined the phrase, they do not understand "peaceful coexistence."

Fidel Castro has played on our weakness for little Cuba long enough. Being tough with him may not make any noticeable difference in his attitude toward us, but it could make quite a difference in the behind-the-scenes plotting of his inner councils.

Congressional authorization of a reduction in Cuba's sugar subsidy is not economic aggression, only a measure of economic defense.

A boss simply couldn't hold his job if he was as ignorant as some of his employees often think he is.

The commercial fisherman has more opportunity to be disappointed with his net income than anyone.

Once Over

How the Glorious Fourth has changed! Remember away back when people had nothing to fear but fireworks? When the first thing to do was put up the flag instead of putting down the hot rod auto top? When people thrilled to Bunker Hill, Concord and Lexington instead of bathing beaches, mountain resorts and thruways? And when the Declaration of Independence was thought by positively nobody to be a guarantee of the right to brawl out another guy for being out on the open road?

The old-fashioned Fourth is banned as too dangerous, but the injury and death totals make a joke of the belief. Pop and Mom got up early to ease the household tension by telling the kids it was okay to try out the firecrackers.

Pop got into the act before breakfast with a homemade cannon. Mom bit her lips and hoped for the best, as a skyrocket came through the kitchen window. It was hectic but nobody devoted the day to getting lost and "beat up" in traffic.

Sometime during the morning the chicken house caught fire and Junior burned his hand. The fire apparatus had roared past the old homestead at least three times. Doc's phones were busy.

But the mood wasn't one of arrogant madness. Behind it all was a deep realization that the Fourth symbolized a great event in American history, even to the moppets.

Little Willie thought of Paul Revere and his horse instead of Hellbent Horace and his 70 h.p. outboard. He knew Bunker Hill wasn't a pleasure resort which could be reached in a six-hour drive if there were no tunnel or bridge tieups.

Mom and Pop were fully aware that the ragged Continentals did not constitute a jazz orchestra. Even the baby knew Thomas Jefferson and John Hancock were not traffic cops, and 1776 wasn't a license plate.

By noon the barn had burned down, there had been several grass fires in every yard and first aid kits were in wide use. But all in all there was an air of patriotism, not contempt for traffic lights, road signs and neighbors.

Fireworks on the village green, band concerts and parades of patriotic societies were basic. The American way was saluted noisily. There were accidents. But the serious ones were fewer and there was more excuse for 'm.

Still the World's Greatest Symbols of Hope

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

No man of good will wants this campaign for the presidency to bog down into the battle of the bilge. Therefore, it is no junking of a newspaper man's neutrality to report that Sen. Lyndon Johnson did not try political blackmail on Gov. Mennen Williams.

The Michigan governor was positioned by somebody because he had not talked directly to Walter Reuther on the timing of the endorsement of Jack Kennedy.

It was Reuther himself who wanted to delay any Michigan public support to Kennedy.

Here, then, is the story behind "Soapy" Williams' charge that the Texas leader threatened to kill aid-to-the-aged legislation if the Michigan forces openly declared for Kennedy now.

Early on the morning of May 3, Reuther left his Washington hotel and headed for "The Hill."

The Auto Union chief was headed for some personal lobbying among some Southern congressmen, knowing well that they often saw red when they saw his carrot top.

REUTHER MOVED on the key men in the House of Representatives that day and again about two weeks later.

His was a quixotic journey. He tried to sell them personally—as a one-man lobby—on the Forand bill for heavy hospitalization and full medical aid to those over 65.

During those two days of small summits, Reuther talked to such Southern leaders as Representatives Frank Icard of Texas, John Watts of Kentucky, Jim Frazier of Tennessee and Wilbur Mills of Arkansas.

They all are influential members of the super-influential Ways and Means Committee. Any bill needs their support as much as gin needs tonic.

Of course, Reuther also spoke to Sam Rayburn. But at no time during this personal lobbying for his favorite bill did the union chief talk to Lyndon Johnson.

On his return to Detroit, Reuther told his brother Roy, the Auto Workers' political director, and some others that they ought to hold up early support for Kennedy.

REUTHER SAID, in effect, why lash out at the Southerners now when we're trying to win their votes for the Forand bill? They are Lyndon Johnson's friends.

If the Michigan delegation slaps at Sen. Johnson now, the entire South will take it as a personal insult.

If you're bargaining, then bargain smart. Don't kick the table out from under the other side.

That word was passed on to Gov. Williams. He interpreted the word from Walter Reuther as an ultimatum from Lyndon Johnson. "Soapy" foamed, some way noted the other day, and understandably resented the pressure.

In Brussels, Reuther then had to attempt to straighten matters out without making his own political partner appear to have falsely attacked the Senate majority leader.

Then in the midst of all this effort to soothe the Southerners of the congressional leaders left the House floor the other day only to hit the ceiling over news that the AFL-CIO national headquarters was preparing to attempt the purge of all who opposed the Forand bill.

THE CONGRESSMEN, Democrats and Republicans alike, resented being told that labor would fight "any candidate for Congress who refuses to endorse Forand-type health insurance."

The warning came from William Schnitzler, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer.

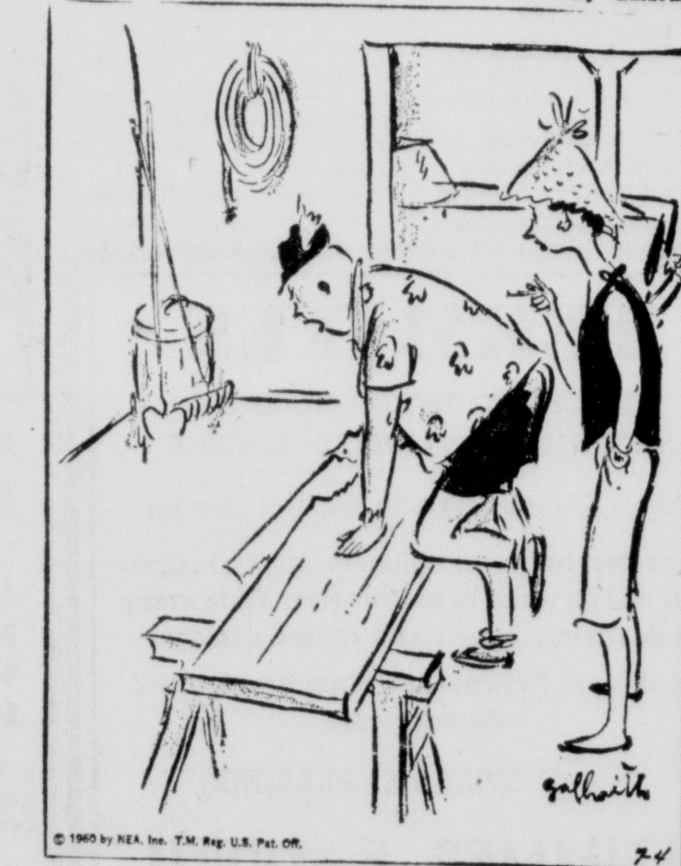

With AFL-CIO President George Meany in Europe, Schnitzler was labor's top man when he announced that complete loyalty to this type of program was a "clear-cut and conclusive" test for labor support.

This apparently is the season for Reuther's getting his bargaining table kicked from under him.

50-Star Old Glory Unfurled Officially

At exactly one minute past midnight on this July Fourth, the new 50-star model of Old Glory is to be unfurled officially over Fort McHenry in Baltimore Harbor—birthplace of our national anthem.

During the British bombardment of the fort, Sept. 13-14, 1814, the immortal words of the Star Spangled Banner were written by Francis Scott Key, and, by act of Congress, Fort McHenry is the only place in the world where the Star Spangled Banner is flown legally 24-hours a day. Thus it is that Fort McHenry has the honor of being the first to raise the flag with the new field of stars.

The flag will be raised over the fort by Fred Seaton in a synthetic "eerie red glare of bombs bursting in air."

At 11 a.m., to the roll of drums, this nation's 50-star flag will be hoisted publicly for the first time.

The place will be Independence Hall at Philadelphia. A Marine Corps color guard, in Colonial uniforms, will have the honor of "running up the colors" that will give the signal to start flying the newest model of Old Glory around the world.

Following the flag-raising, there will be a colorful two-hour ceremony on the tree-shaded square behind Independence Hall.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the historic "Hawaii Flag" will be lowered, placed in a box made of wood from an elm tree taken from Independence Square and presented to U.S. Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii. Eventually it will be placed in the Bishop Museum in Hawaii.

This is the second consecutive Fourth of July that Americans pay their respects to a new model of Old Glory. In 1959, Alaska was welcomed as the 49th state at similar ceremonies.

The American flag, as well as the nation it represents, have come a long way since that July 4th in 1776 when the Colonies celebrated the first anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and Old Glory became the official banner by the decree of Congress that a field of 13 stars shall represent "a new constellation."

How different and yet how similar is this 184th anniversary celebration from that first anniversary.

Old Glory has changed and grown, just as the country it represents has changed and grown. In this respect, it is unique among the flags of the world.

Friends of the Horse

By TRUMAN TWILL

This used to be the time, starting in July, when treatment of horses was a matter of concern.

Humane agents kept track of such things as whether watering troughs were being patronized and the ventilation of feed bags that teamsters tied on to their nags' noses when it was time for lunch.

Horses' necks were inspected for by ill-fitting collars. Drivers were urged to furnish fly nets to keep horse flies from digging in and making life miserable.

Even hats—yes, straw hats—were urged for horses' heads, if they were going to be working in direct sunlight. Friends of the horse used to have their work cut out for them in the good old summertime.

Ole Dobbin always was good for a sob story in the papers. The surest way for an entrepreneur to queer his business was to be cited for cruelty to animals. It was a nappy day when this problem disappeared, with the advent of the horseless carriage.

I had a three-way taste of the horse era during the last few years of its existence.

The farm where I was sent to live each summer until I was of high school age was worked with horses.

The ice company I worked for one summer used horse-drawn delivery wagons.

And when I was very young, the family enterprise was a horse-drawn fleet of wagons that delivered merchandise in our town, just as today the same job is done by motorized delivery vans.

My recollection is crammed with the behaviorisms of horses named Nig, Prince, Queen, Dexter, Chub, Pilot, Frank, Ben, Topsy and Doc. All horses, you see, had familiar names like these, because they established rapport between the horse and driver. Whether or not the nags knew their names is debatable. But even spans of circus horses all had names, in the same way that Santa Claus's reindeer were ticked off by name in "The Night Before Christmas."

Chub I remember well because he was a former circus horse with the rocking-horse gait and broad beam that marked him as a performer.

Nig was a cutup with a weakness for biting. Frank balked. Pilot was a road horse—the kind that could cover ground hour after hour without tiring. Dexter and John were draft horses—heavy-footed and clumsy. I saw them both go down once on a wooden bridge into a bank barn that had been made slippery with rain. They were hitched to a loaded hay wagon, to make matters worse, and were hoisted to their feet by my uncle, who backed under them while they were foundering and lifted them to their feet, one at a time, by arching his back until they were erect.

Doc had a specialty of leaning against anyone who entered his stall; you stopped this by giving him the elbow in his short ribs. Queen had class. She was a buggy horse, with style in handling her feet and holding her head. Prince was capable of rearing if he got the idea the operator on the reins didn't know what was going well a green driver could stay on the back steps and cover the route by remote control.

There never was any question about the treatment of the horses I knew. No one would have wanted to mistreat them. They were working companions. They all had hot-weather hats, fly nets, comfortable collars, ventilated feed bags and reasonably clean living quarters. And when I remember them I can feel sorry for people who never knew what it was like to have horses around.

Cleveland Beats Washington 5-2, 11-5, Sweeps Into 2nd

Power Drives In Four Runs

Perry, Briggs Lead Tribe to Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleveland swept into second place in the American League Sunday by handing Washington its first doubleheader defeat of the season, 5-2 and 11-5. The Indians made it eight in a row over the Senators and moved into the runner-up spot ahead of Baltimore which lost to Chicago, 2-1.

Vic Power drove in four Cleveland runs in the nightcap with a pair of bases-loaded singles. One of these came in the third inning when the Indians chased Don Lee with a six-run barrage. John Romano clouted his seventh homer with one on to climax the rally.

Johnny Briggs, starting for the first time this season after 14 relief assignments, was credited with his fourth victory in the second contest. He needed help from Bobby Locke after yielding a triple to Earl Battey, a homer to Reno Bertoia and a double to Elmer Valo in the seventh inning.

A four-run fifth inning sewed up the first game for starter Jim Perry although he needed relief help from Johnny Klippstein over the final 2 1-3 innings. Marty Keough drove in two Cleveland runs with two singles but the big blows were Woody Held's 13th homer and Harvey Kuenn's fifth, both coming in the big fifth. Bill Fischer was the loser.

Yanks Pull 7-6, 6-2 Wins Over Tigers

NEW YORK (AP)—Home runs by Cletis Boyer and Mickey Mantle and a fine throw by Roger Maris helped the New York Yankees boost their American League lead to three games Sunday by whipping Detroit twice 7-6 and 6-2. A crowd of 50,556 saw the Yanks run their winning streak to six straight.

Boyer's three-run homer capped another come-from-behind spurt by the Yanks in the seventh inning of the opener and Maris' throw nipped pinch runner Casey Wise at the plate when the Tigers threatened in the ninth. Ryne Duren, third Yankee pitcher in the ninth inning, finally struck out Charley Maxwell with the bases loaded to end it.

Mantle hit a three-run homer off Pete Burnside in the fifth to put the Yanks ahead to stay in the second game. It was Mantle's 19th of the season and No. 299 of his career. Art Ditmar went the route for New York with a six-hitter for his seventh victory.

Johnny Gable was the winner in that first game although he pitched only the seventh inning, after replacing Bob Turley. Don Mossi, a Yankee killer of old, was the loser.

Boyer's winning home run came after Mantle was safe on an error and Elston Howard had walked.

NEW HIGH JUMP KING — John Thomas of Boston University points to figures that listed the height of the bar when he jumped 7 feet, 2 inches at the recent A.A.U. track meet at Bakersfield, Calif., to set a new world record. Yuri Stepanov of Russia is holder of the accepted mark of 7 feet, one inch.

Australia Champ Drives for Record In Grand Prix Race

REIMS (AP)—World champion Jack Brabham of Australia in a Cooper won the Reims Grand Prix auto race in record time Sunday and moved into a tie for the lead in the world driving title with Bruce McLaren of New Zealand.

Brabham roared to the finish by half a lap over second place Cooper Climax driven by Belgium's Olivier Gendebien, while McLaren came in third in a Cooper. All shattered the old record of 130 m.p.h. set last year by Tony Brooks of Britain in a Ferrari.

Twenty cars started in the 46th Grand Prix in the 50-lap race covering 257.9 miles, but only nine finished. The last to finish was Masten Gregory of Kansas City in a Maserati.

Brabham and McLaren are now tied for the world title with 24 points each.

The finishing cars were almost all British. Three team Ferraris all failed to go the distance.

The two American Scarabs of Lance Reventlow were withdrawn before the start because their engines were not capable of the fast pace.

Two starters—Graham Hill of Britain in a BRM and Maurice Trintignant of France in a Maserati—had a slight brushup at the start and technically were eliminated from the race by officials. They both pulled in after a few laps.

Moss, now recovering in the hospital from racing injuries, is still third in the world title race with 11 points.

Racing conditions were almost perfect on the 5.16 mile Reims circuit, one of the fastest in the world.

Olympic Teams Are Best Ever

Track, Field Stars Reassemble July 25

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—The strongest, fastest track and field team ever selected to represent the United States in the Olympic Games scattered to the breadth and length of the land Sunday under orders to assemble at Eugene, Ore., July 25.

Powerful as this 1960 squad is, however, it may have trouble winning as many as the 15 medals taken by the United States in Melbourne in 1956.

It won't be Russia that will cut into American strength, as much as a variety of stars from such places as South Africa, the British West Indies, Germany, Poland, and Australia.

Two world champions look like medals in the bank. There is no one to challenge the incredibly consistent John Thomas of Boston University, who raised his high jump world record to 7 feet 3 1/4, and Don Bragg of the United States who pole vaulted 15-9 1/4 for another new record.

"And if we get a few breaks here and there, we might even hit that 15 medal mark," said Pincus Sober of New York, chairman of the Olympic Track Committee.

As he sees it, the United States even has a chance in such hitherto lightly considered events as the hop, step, jump (Ira Davis won the trials in 53 feet 1 1/4), 5,000 meters (Jim Beatty, ex-North Carolina, 44:13.6), and 1,500 (Dyrol Burleson, Oregon, 3:46.9).

Larry Snyder, the Ohio State coach who heads up the American coaching staff for Rome, isn't as optimistic.

"A great team, this, but the individual competition will be mighty tough," he said. "I don't dare hope for 15 gold medals."

This American team, which leaves Aug. 18 for the Olympic games opening Aug. 25 in Rome, broke tryout records in 13 of the 17 events to prove its power.

Merchants Win Fifth As Chippewa Bows 6-3

A five-run spurt in the fourth inning gave the Salem Merchants their fifth win in nine contests on Sunday as they downed Chippewa 6-3 in the County City League.

Playing at Centennial Park, the Merchants started off slowly, getting only one single in the first three innings, that by Don Wukotich. However, in the fourth inning, while trailing by one run, Bob Stallsmith reached first on an error. He advanced to third on a single by Dave Hunter and a fielder's choice. On the same play Hunter advanced to second. Joe Wukotich singled to bring both Stallsmith and Hunter across for the Merchants' first scores.

Three more runs scored in the fourth on singles by Jeff Roberts and Dick Beall and a sacrifice bunt by Jack Bruderly.

The final run for the locals came in the fifth when Don Wukotich rapped a long single down the left field line and then advanced to third on two passed balls. He scored on a single by brother Joe Wukotich who managed to drive in three of the Merchants' six runs.

The loser's second two runs were scored on a home run by Martin with teammate D. Blackwood aboard. Blackwood reached first on an error.

Salem's Dave Hunter had a little control trouble but pitched good ball until the fifth inning when he had to be relieved by Lynn Barnett.

The second game of the scheduled double header was rained out.

Chisox Edge Orioles 2-1 In 11 Innings

BALTIMORE (AP)—Roy Sievers scored both Chicago runs Sunday as the White Sox edged the Baltimore Orioles in an 11-inning pitching duel, 2-1.

The White Sox first baseman blasted his ninth home run of the season into the right field bleachers in the seventh inning to tie the score, and came all the way around from first base in the final frame for the winning run.

A fielding error by Jim Busby in centerfield, on a single by White Sox catcher Sherm Lollar, paved the way for Sievers' winning dash.

The Orioles scored their only run on a fourth inning home run by catcher Gus Triandos. His third round-tripper of the year carried into the left field bleachers.

The victory went to the White Sox ace Gerry Staley, who picked up his eighth triumph of the year in two innings of hitless relief for Herb Score. Staley has lost three.

Jack Fisher was the loser for the Orioles. He pitched all the way, yielding just six hits—three of them to Sievers.

Fisher had a no-hitter going for 5 2-3 innings, but Nellie Fox broke the spell with a slow bouncer over second that went for a single in the sixth.

Score, in his best mound performance of the year, yielded four singles in addition to the homer by Triandos.

Chicago . 000 000 100 1—2 6
Balt. . 000 100 000 00—1 5 2

Score, Staley (1) and Lollar; Fisher and Triandos, W—Staley (8-3), L—Fisher (5-6).

Home runs — Chicago, Sievers (9), Baltimore, Triandos (3).

Cubs Whip Reds With 7-5 Win

Santo Puts Cubs Ahead With Homer

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Ron Santo and the Chicago Cubs roughed up bridegroom Jim O'Toole and whipped the Cincinnati Redlegs 7-5 Sunday.

O'Toole, a 23-year-old southpaw who married Betty Jane Wall of Chicago Saturday, was kayoed in the fifth inning when the Cubs snapped a 3-3 tie with a four-run outburst.

The Redlegs, who had taken the first two of the three-game series, presented O'Toole with a two-run lead in the first inning on singles by Gus Bell and Wally Post and Harry Anderson's double.

Santo, crashing his first major league homer, put the Cubs ahead in the bottom of the first inning after Richie Ashburn and Frank Thomas singled. Cincinnati tied it in the second on a bloop double by Bill Martin and Eddie Kasko's single.

The Redlegs never did get back in the game.

Shortstop Ken Hamlin obtained in a deal with Pittsburgh last December, was the only rookie to start the American League season with the Kansas City Athletics.

The locals jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning and retained the lead until the fourth inning when the visitors came up with seven runs tying the game 9-9. However, in the last half of the fifth, Marks came up with two more runs for the final score of the game.

Local CAP Cadets At Camp

Five local Civil Air Patrol cadets are attending summer training camp for nine day at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton.

The cadets, Irma Kaminsky, Manfred Meine, Larry Cope, John Seroka and Tom Eichler, have been in the local patrol for one and a half years and passed a series of scholastic examinations to qualify for camp. They will tour the airbase, be shown the missile program and will experience a regular airforce camp life on military schedule, which will include guard duty, rifle practice and calisthenics.

A highlight of the program will be jet orientation flights, and weather permitting, they will take individual flights in jet planes.

The only senior member accompanying the cadets is M. Sgt. Tom Hutson, who will be assigned to the motor transportation corps.

Reed is the stellar attraction at Maine's northernmost peak, 1,661-foot Mars Hill, because it is nearest his Fairfield base. Other ceremonies are at 5,265-foot Mt. Katahdin, near Millinocket, and on 1,530-foot Mt. Cadillac, outside Bar Harbor.

The Air Force planned to raise a flag at Poland Springs, Maine, fly it by jet to Hawaii and raise it 17 hours later on this historic day at Hickam Air Force Base. President Eisenhower sent the original official 50-star flag to Philadelphia to fly over Independence Hall Monday. It will be given later in the day to Sen. Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) for transfer to the archives of his state.

Hawaiians, because of their far-western location, will be among the last to raise the new flag. But the festive-minded islanders will have the biggest ceremony, at historic Iolani Palace.
